Introduction

For 3 days, the International Wood Construction Forum will provide a genuine framework for national and international exchanges, with a unique high-level professional conference and exhibition format that brings together the entire profession and all those involved in the forest/wood and biobased industries. With more than 5,600 participants, 250 exhibitors and 350 speakers in 2023, the International Wood Construction Forum has become one of the world's leading gatherings for timber/biobased construction, renovation and wooden interior design.

Thanks to its unifying role, it brings together private and public project owners (developers, investors...), project managers (architects, economists, engineers, engineering companies...), builders (carpenters, woodworkers, interior designers and construction companies...), distributors and manufacturers, as well as training and R&D organisations.

The terms and conditions for the organisation of the exhibition, in particular the opening dates, its duration, the location, the opening and closing times and the price of admission, shall be determined by the organiser and may be modified at his initiative. In cases where, for major, unforeseeable or economic reasons, the exhibition cannot take place, applications for admission shall be cancelled and the sums unavailable after payment of the expenses incurred shall be distributed among the exhibitors in proportion to the sums paid by each of them.
